The Jersey Conference Bureau

The Jersey Conference Bureau is a non commission earning or fee charging marketing body for the conference and incentive market in the Island. The Bureau is a public and private partnership and represents the Island's interests as a whole. Our advice to you is free, impartial and reflects what in our knowledge would be the best solution to your needs.

Live the life

Jersey is a lot more than a little bit of Britain. It's Britain with brio, England with a generous dash of continental Europe. It's an Island that goes its own way, conjuring up an intriguing mix of sights and sounds, images and influences, all within just 45 square miles.

If ever there was a conference destination that will leave you with an enthused sensation then that must be Jersey. Located 100 miles from the English coast and only 14 miles from the French coast, Jersey has a rich cultural history of French and English rule. The Island has a unique atmosphere and a wealth of amenities and attractions - everything in fact a conference and incentive organiser could wish for.

The surrounding sea dominates the landscape with views of the Atlantic Ocean a constant in the Island. The coastline offers infinite variety – majestic cliffs, exposed bays, sandy beaches, rocky coves and magnificent dunes are all within easy reach.

The countryside is rich and woodland is set in deep valleys with fast flowing streams. Canopies of oak, sycamore, ash and wild cherry offer many homes to the profusion of indigenous wildlife. More exotic species can be found at the world famous Durrell Wildlife Conservation Trust.

Diversity abounds – Jersey is city-cool and cosmopolitan yet reassuringly rural. Glitzy harbours rub shoulders with untouched beaches, all lapped by some of the cleanest seas on the planet. Jersey is also quirky. You drive on the left, but pass bright yellow phone boxes. You see country pubs and village churches, but the road names are in French.

The Island is also a renowned international finance centre with many of the world's leading banks and financial institutions represented and in excess of £180 billion invested in deposits and £170 billion in funds. With such a rich knowledge and experience in the needs of the business world, it's not surprising that Jersey is the chosen venue for numerous international conferences.

What's in store?

Jersey is home to a variety of hotels and venues for you to choose an ideal setting for your event.

Over the last two years there has been major investment in hotels in Jersey. And two new hotels open their doors in 2007. The 110 room Royal Yacht Hotel & Spa in St. Helier will offer a design-led luxury experience and meeting facilities for up to 200 delegates. The 195 bedroom Radisson SAS Jersey on St. Helier's Waterfront will offer conference space for up to 300 delegates as well as fantastic views of the marina and Elizabeth Castle.

These two are just part of over £150 million that has and is being invested in conference led facilities.

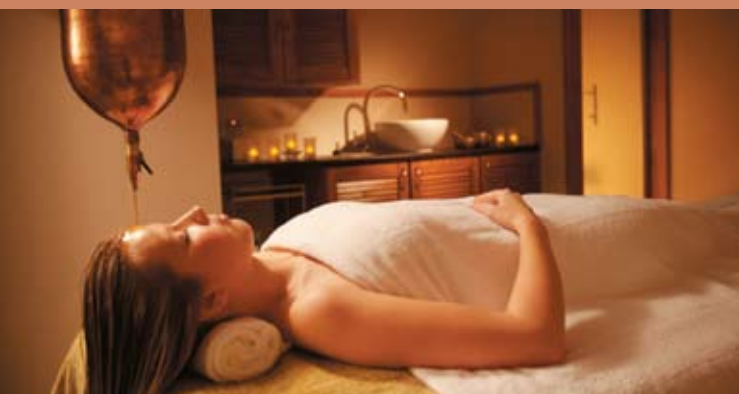

The renaissance of the Grand Jersey has begun and this grand old hotel in the finest tradition has been reborn - imaginatively being transformed into a luxury hotel, designed to meet every contemporary need.

The Hotel de France recently opened its new Ayush Wellness spa and with an investment of over £14 million there are also new meeting rooms, a bespoke cinema and tailor-made facilities making the hotel an ideal venue for product and car launches.

The 106 bedroom L'Horizon Hotel and Spa, with an enviable beachside location on St. Brelade's Bay has completed its extensive £8.5 million renovation, with an accent on contemporary designer-led style. The Somerville Hotel has also undergone extensive refurbishment and enjoys breathtaking views over the yachting harbour and the bay of St. Aubin beyond.

There is also a concentration of luxury in Jersey – in fact 3 of the AA's top rated Red Star Hotels are also found in Jersey. The sumptuous 13th Century Longueville Manor is highly regarded and has been awarded numerous accolades including in 2006 the Relais & Châteaux Welcome Trophy. The epitome of the crisp and clean appearance of classic 1930's seaside marine architecture, the 50 bedroom Atlantic Hotel is no stranger to awards and won the 2007 Conde Nast Johansens Award for Excellence in Outstanding Service. The contemporary and chic Club Hotel & Spa opened in August 2004, already rates as one of the AA's ten most highly graded hotels and restaurants in Britain. Shaun Rankin, of Bohemia, already with a Michelin Star, was also rated by Terry Durack of the Independent as British Chef of the year in 2006.

So with numerous awards and accolades as well as the huge investment, whichever venue you choose for your event, you can be assured of the highest levels of facilities, cuisine and service available.

Whatever the event,
shape or size

Jersey plays host to many different types of events. A popular and established choice for pharmaceutical companies, the communications and manufacturing sectors and the finance industry, Jersey is a natural choice for companies whether delegates are all travelling together or are attending from across the UK and even Europe.

Being so small the down time in Jersey is also minimal. It is not only the travel to the Island that is quick. Once you are here journeys rarely take more than 15 minutes and you are able to get more done in a shorter period of time. This makes Jersey not only a cost effective but also a time effective choice. It also makes choosing your venue that much easier as you are not restrained by exact location.

Jersey plays host to car launches, product launches, sales conferences, corporate entertaining, deluxe incentives, corporate challenges and team building activities as well as small executive meetings. The Island can also host meetings for 800 delegates at the Hotel de France and 2,000 delegates at Fort Regent, and the Jersey Conference Bureau can offer support in bringing you to the Island to view the facilities.

You can also choose from some very unusual venues. La Mare Vineyards offers the glorious Elms farmhouse as well as one of the more unique settings for your event in the Distillery. The crypt in the middle ward of Mont Orgueil, a 13th Century castle, is the perfect setting for a small reception, while the medieval Great Hall is fantastic for small dinners. But perhaps the most popular private use of the castle is for evening parties with drinks on the ramparts and a marquee on the lower keep affording views of the harbour below and across the narrow channel of water to France.

The Island is also a popular choice for visiting Trade Associations, Unions, Rotary Clubs and other not-for profit organisations. The Jersey Conference Bureau offers generous support to assist these organisations to bring their events to Jersey.

Assistance and support can be arranged to cover a number of activities for particular events - please contact the Conference Bureau for more information. Support can include the hosting of a civic reception or Vin d'Honneur, hosted inspection visits, complimentary literature, PR support to boost the profile of the event and contribution to conference room hire costs. We can also offer support to offset your carbon emissions caused by delegates travel to the Island through a regeneration scheme with the Durrell Wildlife Conservation Trust ensuring a legacy is created by your event. Please contact the team at the Jersey Conference Bureau for assistance.

Island Indulgence

Great food has been one of Jersey's attractions for many years and the Island has built up an international reputation for its range of restaurants and cooking styles, which continues to impress visitors and locals alike.

Jersey has a varied and cosmopolitan population. France only being 14 miles away has a strong influence as do the flavours of the Mediterranean and Portugal and Jersey continues to combine the best of traditional foods with a flair and invention to rival anywhere in the world.

Local seafood features strongly with the morning's catch being available from the Beresford Fish Market in St. Helier and many rare lobsters caught in the waters around Jersey as the finest available. Other locally grown produce including the famous Jersey Royal potatoes, are available from the ornate Central Market, where you can mingle with chefs on their daily rounds. In fact the variety, quality and freshness of local produce gives Jersey a bit of an unfair advantage.

The widespread use of fresh local produce, interesting and varied menus together with outstanding value all provide a dining experience to remember - whether it be in a simple beach café, a street brasserie, a traditional country pub, or a chance to take pleasure in Michelin star dining either at Bohemia, located at The Club Hotel & Spa, or at the Ocean Restaurant at The Atlantic Hotel.

But great restaurants are not the only way to treat yourself, as Jersey is home to some fantastic Spa facilities.

The Royal Yacht Hotel and the Phytomer Spa Sirène opening in 2007 will join a roster of other fantastic Spa facilities. The Hotel de France is the first hotel in the British Isles with a spa dedicated to the principles of Ayurveda and restorative spa waters and features 8 treatment rooms. At the boutique Club Hotel & Spa you can delve into the world of Algoterm and Shankara in the 5 treatment rooms, and then unwind in The Spa relaxation room with its soft lighting and luxurious loungers. The beachside location of the Hotel L'Horizon and Spa is harmonised by the Thalgo treatments, harnessing the riches of the sea so you can benefit from the powerful healing, revitalising and re-balancing properties, vital for health and well being.

Go on, indulge yourself.

When it's time to enjoy yourself

An action packed Island, Jersey has plenty for you to choose from to enjoy yourself. Outdoor and indoor activities can be arranged for groups or individuals, for simple pleasure or for the adrenalin buzz in trying something new.

There are the tranquil pursuits of wine tasting and blending at the stunning La Mare Vineyards, trying your hand at the Jersey Pottery or taking a private tour at many of the award winning museums and places of historical interest such as the 13th Century Mont Orgueil Castle.

You could also enjoy the luxury of hiring your own private yacht and step aboard to enjoy a cruise for an evening off the beautiful south coast of Jersey. Relax and enjoy sights such as castles and old forts dating back to the 6th Century, Dead Man's Bay, towers & gun emplacements left behind by the occupying German forces after the Second World War and granite cliffs towering some 150 feet.

For the more adventurous you can try your skill at blo-karting on the five mile beach at St. Ouen. Learn to rock climb and abseil, go bass fishing in the shallows as the tide races in or try deep sea fishing. Learn to sail, scuba dive or any number of watersports. You could even take a flying lesson around the Island to really see the landscape. Enjoy an explosive team activity under the cover of darkness or perhaps be taught interrogation techniques in the dungeons at Elizabeth Castle.

Surrounded by a necklace of golden beaches, Jersey is rightly regarded as one of Europe's best locations for outdoor pursuits, and with a multitude of bars and restaurants, it is easy to see why the 'Après-Sea' scene is also enticing. With opportunities to try your hand at over 30 different activities, Jersey is a great place to develop team integration programmes. The Island will conjure up so many unique experiences for you and your delegates and is also a superb destination choice for bespoke team development programmes.

For shoppers, the capital of Jersey, St. Helier, is where busy streets, original markets, squares, lanes and pedestrianised areas create a pleasant atmosphere for browsing and buying. There are numerous festivals and events in Jersey, many in St. Helier itself, making the town a vibrant and exciting place to experience.

Using the past
to enrich the future

For such a small Island Jersey has had an amazing history.

Initially part of Brittany, Jersey became part of the Duchy of Normandy in 933 and remained part of the Duchy until 1204 when King Phillippe II of France conquered the Duchy from King John of England. The Channel Islands pledged their allegiance to King John and remained in his possession given the title Peculiar of the Crown. This didn't stop the Island being a flashpoint during subsequent wars, occupied several times by the French, and recent history has been dominated by the Occupation of the Island by German troops between 1940 and 1945.

With such a lively past Jersey is constantly thinking of new and more exciting ways of bringing the Island's rich history to life so visitors can also join in the celebration of the colourful heritage.

This is very much apparent at Jersey's largest testament to its World War two occupation – the Jersey War Tunnels. A network of tunnels first created to protect arms and troops from bomb attacks by the Allies; it was then converted into an elaborate hospital to deal with casualties from any counter-invasion. In 2001 a superb multi-million pound interactive exhibition was developed that tells the true-life stories of the islanders and foreign prisoners who were involved in the hospital's construction, as well as the families who lived through the trying years of occupation and is an amazing and thought provoking insight into life during the Second World War.

The renowned Durrell Wildlife Conservation Trust also has its headquarters in Jersey. The Trust, set up by Gerald Durrell, has a mission to save species from extinction. Not only is the Trust a fascinating and great venue for team activities but you can help the Trust work to achieve their mission. Working alongside trained conservationists your delegates can assist in creating habitats which will benefit the numerous species at the Trust and the ongoing work to assure their survival.

In fact this social awareness, alongside the long recognised need to protect the fragile ecosystems on the Island, is prevalent and in 1997 Jersey became the first Island to gain Green Globe status. Furthermore the Jersey Conference Bureau also coordinates a carbon emissions offsetting programme in conjunction with Durrell to neutralise emissions caused by delegates return travel to Jersey. For more details please contact the team at the Jersey Conference Bureau.

English or French?
Neither!

It's actually Jèrriais

Tch'est qu'est l'Jèrriais? What is Jèrriais? It is the old language of Jersey which is closely related to French. There are a number of Islanders who speak Jèrriais and to ensure its survival it is now being taught in the Island schools. You are most likely to hear Jèrriais spoken in the countryside or occasionally in the markets of St. Helier.

The establishments listed are all popular hotels and venues for meetings and incentives. All of them offer supreme levels of service and a sense of style for which the Island is renowned.

For non-hotel venues there is a variety to choose from. For more information on each, please visit the website www.jerseyconferences.com

People and Government

Jersey is not, nor ever has been, a British colony. Constitutionally, its status is that of a Crown Peculiar. Jersey is a parliamentary democracy which is a dependency of the British Crown. It is a British island, but is not part of the United Kingdom.

The Island's link with the United Kingdom and the rest of the Commonwealth is through Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, who as the Sovereign is the Head of State. The Sovereign is represented in the Island by the Lieutenant Governor, through whom official communications with the Lord Chancellor on behalf of Her Majesty's government in the United Kingdom are directed.

The States of Jersey, the Island's government, is therefore able to decide its own legal acts, including levels of taxation.

With a variety of choice sometimes it can be difficult to know where to begin.

To help you we have made some suggestions on the following pages to get you started.

But by no means is this all you can do. These are just a snapshot and if you wish to explore more ideas please visit www.jerseyconferences.com or contact the Jersey Conference Bureau.

Getting started

Itinerary One

So you have a small group that you want to return invigorated, refreshed, motivated and informed. Here's one idea.

Before the trip

We can arrange for gifts or postcards to be sent to your delegates in the days leading up to the trip with teasers of what they will be expecting. We can also arrange for a separate check-in desk to be available at the airport.

Day one

On arrival, meet the group on the tarmac at Jersey Airport and escort immediately for revitalising smoothies and fresh pastries on the beach at St. Brelade's Bay.

Then onto St. Ouen's Bay where your guests will learn how to sand yacht on the flat sands of the five mile beach, taking part in time-based competitions.

That evening, dinner will be a chance to start the formal aspect of the event at your hotel.

Pillow gift: Home-made chocolates from La Mare Vineyards.

Day two

After the morning meeting session and lunch at the hotel, your guests will split into teams of four and take part in a late afternoon Mission Impossible challenge around the Island, including a visit to the famous Durrell Conservation Trust to help conservationists in their work to protect endangered species. Then finish up at La Mare Vineyards for a private tour of the vineyard, a wine blending competition and team building tasks.

Dinner will be a relaxed affair at one of the many restaurants opposite St. Aubin's Harbour and then onto St. Helier and the nightlife at the Waterfront development.

Pillow gift: An alarm clock set at 6.00am for the early start ahead. And a chef's hat for one person.

Day three

Get them up early to meet the Chef from one of the Island's leading restaurants at the Beresford Fish Market in St. Helier at 7.00am for coffees and croissants, before choosing that night's dinner from the fresh morning catch as it arrives.

Then straight down to the harbour for a pre-sailing briefing from their Captain for the day, who with his crew, will get them 'hands on' sailing around the south east coast. Or for a more relaxing time use a powered luxury Sunseeker. Lunch will be a barbecue enjoyed at the Ecrehous, a reef off Jersey where bottle-nosed dolphins are a common sight.

The afternoon is free for more meeting time or time to explore the pedestrianised streets of St. Helier. Or perhaps it's time to take advantage of one of the Island's Spas and have a rejuvenating and relaxing treatment to prepare for the evening.

Pre dinner drinks can be served in the gardens of your chosen restaurant, perhaps overlooking the French coast or the wide expanse of one of Jersey's beautiful beaches. Dinner will be served in the restaurant where you will have exclusive use except for one of your guests as they discover that they will have to use their Chef's hat and assist with preparing their colleagues dinner!

Pillow gift: A set of crystal glasses and the winning wine from the blending competition especially made for you from La Mare Vineyards.

Day four

Morning meeting session followed by a buffet lunch at the hotel with a chance to view some slides or a video from images of your visit and then departure.

Itinerary Two

What about a larger group of, for instance, 80 to 300 delegates?

Your objective is to communicate a new product range or company information to staff or invited clients and there is a need for a number of meeting sessions but also chances to network.

Before the trip: Again we can arrange for gifts or postcards to be sent to your delegates in the days leading up to the trip with teasers of what they will be expecting. We can also arrange for a separate check-in desk to be available at the airport.

Day one

Guests arrive and are transferred to their hotel.

That afternoon a range of activities are available to choose from such as golf, scuba diving, abseiling, blo-karting, jet skiing, Island excursions or a chance to sand yacht. Alternatively, a guided tour at the Durrell Wildlife Conservation Trust will provide a fascinating insight into the Trust's ongoing work with endangered species.

That evening your guests are invited to the tranquil setting of La Mare Vineyards. Enjoy a tour of the vines, followed by drinks and canapés on the lawns, next to the 18th century granite farmhouse. Then prepare for a medieval jousting dinner in a themed marquee, prepared by one of the Island's event companies.

Pillow gift: Each guest receives a nightcap – a flagon of Apple Brandy from La Mare Vineyards.

Day two

After the day's meeting your delegates will be taken to the Jersey Pottery where the site will be available for exclusive use. Dinner will be in the Garden Restaurant, with roving magicians and artistes, after drinks have been served around the gardens and showrooms. Or perhaps that evening, a private champagne reception can be held on the grass ramparts of Mont Orgueil castle, just a short drive from the Pottery.

Day three

After the day's meeting has finished at 3.00pm, guests can be separated into small teams and then sent on an Island-wide challenge - or give your delegates a chance to pamper themselves at one of the Island's fantastic Spas.

Later that evening, guests can enjoy a themed dinner at the hotel or venue of your choice - in the past, clients have themed museums, inspired Moulin Rouge at castles and even transformed churches.

Day four

After the morning meeting guests can enjoy a buffet lunch before departure.
